MOSCOW, April 28 — The Soviet Union has secreted that a United States diplomat expelled two weeks ago from Afghanistan was snared in a counterintelligence operation that had been sending begins information about Afghanistan to the Central Intelligence

When Afghanistan announced on April 11 that Richard S. Vandiver, a third secretary at the 'United States Embassy in Kabul, was being expelled for spying, the State Department rejected the statement as having "no substance whatever." However, a detailed account appearing in the Soviet Government newspaer Irvestia has asserted that Mr. Vaniver was a C.I.A. agent and that he ras duped into thinking that an Afghan itizen recruited during a visit to the ritied States was relaying aviantle intransmission about Afghanistan's guerilla war, the movements of its leaders and other matters. According to the toyiet account, the operation passed in fact, Izvestia said, the Afghan con act, identified as Abdul Majid, was Afghanistan's security services "to expose the dirty face of C.I.A. provocations." Since the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan in Docember 1979, its military and security apparatus has been controlled from Moscow.

The irvestia account, published two days after the expulsion, did not say why the Afghans had curtailed a purportedly successful counterinselligenous operation by expelling Mr. Vandiver Western diplomats here cautioned against according the irvestia version at face value, saying that it could be part of a Soviet effort to recoun from States infiltration of the Afghan Gov-

The diplomats said they had no inide knowledge of the affair. However, hey said it was theoretically possible hat Mr. Majid, the Afghan citizen in he case, had been successfully reruited by the C.I.A. and was later caught, whereupon the Soviet experts who oversee Afghanistan's instillation or operations could have tried to reduce the damage by saying lift. Majid had hears a druble nearest all cheers of point security services incument the operation against a background of intensive efforts by the C.I.A. to infiltrate the Afghan Government.

"In recent years, the United States pecial services did not ignore a single tighen citizen making a trip to the brited States," the paper said. "Afterperiod of servelliance and soundings, visitor would be appreached with an offer to cooperate with the C.I.A. on knowable terms."

Izvestia identified Mr. Majid as a recurity service operative" who osed as a "well-placed government oficial" and went to the United States or medical treatment. The paper said hat on arrival in Los Angules he was almost immediately approached by medical corts to return for his agrees;

After heart surgery, Mr. Majid vs.o. add to have been required by main good on the C.LA. "investment" Series with. "A nicer's two days either his discharge from the clinic, Majid was all work again," Investia said. "He was spirited to the C.LA. office is Les Asgeles for a polygraph test, which felled to catch him off guard. He peased the test without losing his composure and was thereupon turned over to a cartain "John," who made so effort to conceal the fact that he was a preleasional spy working at the American Embassy in Kabut II.
